To my loving mother. We had our good times and bad times. We butted heads a lot but we always made up because we were so much alike and I'm going to carry that with me forever. You don't have to feel all the pain you felt anymore. We won't be fighting about when you should try to go to sleep anymore, which I will miss so much. Now it's my turn to take care of daddy. I know no one could do it the way you did but I will give it my all. You won't get to see me graduate nursing school/college in person but I know you will be there in spirit but I am going strong like before when you were so proud of me. I'm Doing it still getting all A's, still doing it for me to better myself but now I know I will do it because I have a perfect angel. YOU watching over me. You will always be in my heart and soul. I will never forget all the things you did to give me such a good life and make me the happiest kid alive even though I'm 28 now. I wanted to thank you and tell you how much I love and miss you. XOXO Kendra Jarvis your daughter forever

To my loving mother, I was going through pictures today and I found the very first picture of me of inside your belly. I know we butted heads a lot but that's because we were so much alike and I hope to continue to follow your footsteps because you were one of the best people with the biggest hearts I'd ever met. It didn't matter how rotten I was, you still loved me with all your heart. I'm going to miss asking you to go to bed because it's late. Towards the end, I became more of your caregiver with daddy and I liked being the one to help you even though sometimes we had different ideas of what you should be doing. You are always going to watch over me. You won't get to see me graduate from nursing school/college, I know you will be with me and I'm continuing it for you and for me too but I know how happy my going back to school made you and I want to continue to make you happy as you look over me be happy that I am making my life better and don't worry about dad I'm trying my hardest to be strong for him and make sure he knows I love him and I also wanted to tell you to please remember how much you meant to me and how much I loved you and will always love you. You are my mother and you taught me how to be the person I am today and I will never forget that. I love you so very much and I will be thinking of you everyday of the rest of my life, you will never be forgotten by me, you touched my heart and soul forever.

Dear Dad and Kendra, I know this is a difficult time for you two. You have lost a wife, friend, and mother. No words can ever replace a loved one but she still lives in you and that is what matters. You will never forget Sherri and therefore she is never really gone. I didn't know Sherri like you two did but this I do know, she loved you two very much and you two loved her in return. I hope you can find comfort in knowing that Sherri gets to rest now and no longer has her struggles with her health and she was not alone. You are in my thoughts and I wish you the best. Your son and brother, Dana Rustebakke

Dear Steve and Kendra, We are sincerely sorry for the loss of Sherri. She was a beautiful wife to you Steve and a wonderful mother to you Kendra and we know you both miss her dearly. Although the time we knew Sherri was short, we quickly came to know her as a kind and caring person, and our small community has lost a very special person. These are some of the roughest times that a family will face so lean on each other, be kind to each other, and pray for comfort and peace, time heals all wounds. Please reach out to us for anything that you might need, your friends and neighbors. Mark & Jay

Sherri to my loving wife to whom I will miss greatly. We only had 22 years together which was not enough. I miss finding you sitting on the couch watching the news in the morning, drinking your diet coke. I will miss your phone calls when I am at work complaining that you were unable to find anything on TV. Most of all I will miss you and the good times that we had together. But most all I will miss you. Your loving husband Steve

Kendra I want you to know how bad I feel for your loss, but We both know no matter what your mother loved you more than anything. She is now able to be at peace and be in a beautiful place always watching over you, you have your guardian angel watching over you and encouraging you to keep moving forward that is what she wanted for you. Always know you are my family now not just a best friend but a sister that I never had. Keep your head up, chin high and keep on keeping on. It takes time but it will get better

For Steve and Sherri, I am so thankful for all of the help you have us with this past year, it's been a quiet blessing that I thank God for bringing your family into our lives, I will always be indebted to your family for your kindness. I also am so grateful for meeting Sherri and her becoming a very special friend, I will miss our talks so much we were able to have a special bond we both tried to lift each other up and that's what life is about family and friendships. I now and have for a while considered you family and I hope over time things will get better but Sherri has made an impact on more lives than just mine and that's why we will carry on her legacy as a beautiful loving wife, mother, sister, and friend always and forever My deepest condolences to the family, Love Shelley

Sheri you are my oldest sister and although we haven't seen each other in a long while, I know you know I love you and I am terribly sorry you had to fight through the last several years with the illness that you had and the over medicated state that you lived your life through. As youngsters, you were always the one that took the lead as the older sibling and you wanted and wore that badge well. You were taken to early from this life on earth but you are in a much better place now. There is no pain or suffering, no medication, no worries. You're at the place you needed to be and wanted to be, you are now with our savior Jesus Christ. Your back with mom and dad, you can relax now, the burden of every day living on earth is over. REST in PEACE, CHONNY! We will miss you and always love you. God Bless you, Mike Madden, Craig Madden and Teri Madden Fisher
