Sister, Allie, You knew the song "I'll fly away Ole Glory"-you earned your butterfly wings and now you're an "angel". You fly high into that bright blue sky. With our butterfly dreams our hearts ache for you and the tears still fall. We can still picture that beautiful smile-our memories will always be there to share Jesus has you now in his loving care-our fears are no longer You are healed from all pain and sorrow-You are walking the streets of gold at that Mansion in the sky. Your pearlie white robe lights up your glowing face. Looking down on the lost souls in this old troubled world. Some sweet day my dear sister we will join hand in hand in that Glorious Promise Land. Singing sweet bye and bye. Love you so much Allie Little Sis Dar

I can't believe I've lost a sister. I wish we could have you back Alice. I know you worried about me a lot but I didn't want you to worry about anything other taking care of your self and Alvin. Watermelon will never be the same without you. Donnie

We long for the warmth of your smile and the touch of your hand. If there are pretty flowers and beautiful butterflies in your world now then my prayers have been answered. If we can't have you back with us then we want you safe, happy and blowing butterfly kisses with our names on them. We love you Alice. Sissie

Alice is next to the youngest of nine siblings. She moved from Luray to Culpeper, VA when she married Alvin at the age of seventeen. The added distance could not separate our hearts. We all share a bond that can never be broken. She left our closely knit circle but we knew our love stayed as strong as ever. I hear her voice when she was calling for advice. I hear her laughter when I said something funny. I remember her concern when a child or grandchild needed to be cared for. I still want to call her just to leave a message.. "Ali where you at this early in the morning? Call me!" Ali I know you are already working your way with the man in charge ...I see the results of your blessings. Sandy
