You have my sincere sympathy in the loss of Jenny, someone who was far too young for you and her friends to lose. Try to remember her affection for all of you, the strength that she had that helped her to deal with her life-long physical condition, and the courage that it took for her to keep going. Continue to support each other, to be grateful for her impact on your lives, and to let your faith sustain you. May God bless each of you in this difficult time.
